Principal's Message :

I feel joy to share with a strong hope that the extracts from my own poem 'Allow Sanity a Little Space' prescribed for B. Sc. Part I students of RTM Nagpur university will motivate students for creative writings. I appeal to them that they should meditate on things happening around us and pen down what they feel and experience. This will help them write well.

Isn't it sad to see
We haven't budged an inch ahead
From the mire of yesteryears'
Pool of hatred and revenge
Even after centuries of education
And fortified with our religion
And civilization?

Our weapons of war
Haven't ensured any peace
Or, rather proliferated
Our angst our cruelty
And our sense of insecurity.
Continue we to stain our hands,
Given to work and produce
In honour and dignity,
With blood of our brethren
With whom we consume the same sun
And the air and the water.

Shall our world be
A place poorer
Than what it is today
Shorn of its diverse religions
Which together have failed to make us
Creatures with any sound reasons?

The barbs of hatred
Will surely lead us no where,
Let us learn then to live in His grace
And allow sanity a little space.

Editorial :

Friends, for the last one and half years survival has become precarious and appalling and it has not remained so appealing as it used to be due to the global pandemic Covid. Two long lock downs have kept people confined within the four walls of their houses and have forced them to manage their work from home. Health not Wealth has become a thing of prime concern both for an individual as well as the society.

Poverty, hardship, sickness and death have been craving for prosperity, happiness, success and life. This bleak ambience of hardships has not only hardened people's hearts but it has also set them to extraordinary destiny which will solely depend on IT. Helpless pedagogy too hangs on virtual means now. Hence, teaching, learning, examinations, seminars are all done online these days.

Therefore 'Akashganga' presents the record of all online activities of our teachers. Hope you would like.
